Dawn arrived on time as did two of the toughest, angriest, roughest, dangerous, threatening, harshest, and down-right mean cowboys that ever met. Never in the history of the West had two of such evil villains been in the same place at the same time, but not since the infamous eastern duo of Max Sand and J.C. Boggs, had the little town of Chabot witness such evil.

The odds makers were in heaven, the entire town was placing bets, if it wasn't for the revenue from its famous whiskey the take for the betting would be the number one source of income

(they maybe a city could be founded on gambling – naw that's crazy). Just before the anticipated gunfight the odds were 3 to 2 in favor of...who. Who were these two nefarious gunfighters – none other than Dice and Tully Mars. The odds favored Tully because he had the sun at his back otherwise the two were evenly matched.

But why were they in town and why were they facing off ready to draw blood. Marshal Vesparado had no idea why they were in his town and he didn't seem to be interested in asking either why they were both here. The biggest question on everyone's mind was why were these two in town? Was it to prove who the fastest gun was? Obviously neither had lost a gunfight, so what was it.

The two stood facing each other on Main Street, no one in town dared breathe or make a sound less the two gunfighters mistook the noise as a threat and turned their considerable gun skills to the direction of the noise.

As far as anybody could tell neither of the gunfighters had blinked in the last ten minutes. Their hands hung motionless inches away from their finely tuned .45 colts. Finally, after twenty minutes, German Bob slowly approached the two killers and asked – politely- what was going on. Dice and Tully both turned towards German Bob and explained that they had bet each other to see how long someone would ask them what they were doing all while they waited for the Oklahoma Jones Steakhouse to open - and Dice won the bet (he bet that it would take more than 15 minutes for someone to approach) and Tully had to buy breakfast.

It was Dice that took the match with no misses proving that the Chabot match is easy and joining the ranks of the hundreds of cowboys and cowgirls that have cleaned the match. Tully was second by a mere 20+ seconds. He was followed by Salt Pork Steve, Oklahoma Jones, and Buck. Buck and German Bob missed only one and have filed protests with the match organizers demanding the tapes be reviewed. Thanks for helping Cyrus run the match.

GANG OF FIVE ROBS BANK AND GETS AWAY - EL PASSO GASSO GANG NOT SUSPECTED!!

Stage one

The successful morning robbery of the Fat Billy's Bank of the East shocked the small town of Chabot. After numerous unsuccessful attempts by the El Passo Gang, the townsfolk just assumed that they would never have a successful robbery. But on the morning of the 6th three cowboys burst into the Bank and, with an air of professionalism never seen by the employees or customers (having witnessed many of El Passo's attempts) the three desperadoes gathered up all of the money in the safe (estimated to be about $175,000 in cash - money that the saloon barons received for their fine whiskey). And without a shot being fired the three very professional, and well dressed I might add, bandits strolled out of the bank, and rode out of town.

Because of the success of the robbers no one gave any thought to pursuing the El Passo Gang. But who were these desperate characters? The only lead that Marshal Jasper had was from Oklahoma Jones who saw The Redwood Kid, the Shanghai Kid, and the Piate Kid, behind the bank putting on masks. Could it be the infamous Kid gang from back East?

The get-away was so clean perhaps we will never know but one thing for sure the El Passo Gasso Gang is in the clear. El Passo took second in this stage - not bad. First was Tully Mars, following El Passo was Dice, Salt Pork and Buck.

BUCK PUTS ON INCREDIBLE DISPLAY OF SHOOTING!!

Stage two

You could hear a pin drop. The silence was deafening as Buck, after having returned from an extensive and successful gambling trip to Tombstone, stepped out into Main Street to face the 26 desperate banditos from Tombstone who claimed they were bilked by Buck.

When one of the banditos went for his gun Buck let loose with shotgun, then both sixguns, shotgun and trusty Winchester. In less than 36 seconds all of the bandits were suffering from lead poisoning.

These are our "ode to SASS" stages and Buck outgunned'm all taking 3rd and 2nd respectively in stages two and three. First in stage two was Dice followed by El Passo, then Buck, Salt Pork, and Tully Mars. First in stage three was Tully Mars followed by Buck, Dice, El Passo, and Cyrus Sidewinder.

JASPER GUNS DOWN RUSTLERS - SAVES HERD!!

Stage four

Do not bring a knife to a gunfight, and if your facing Jasper (the scourge of the West), bring more than 24 men. With his trusty Winchester, shotgun, and two Colts, Jasper faced down a gang of rustlers trying to take his herd of 1200 prime steers, and his prize collection of cast iron pots. Jasper politely asked the rustler to lay down their shooting irons but the gang made the mistake of going for their smoke wagons. In less than two minutes Jasper laid waste to the gang and saved the cattle (and his cast iron).

That's right. With rifle, shotgun and sixgun Jasper got'm in a tad over 91 seconds for a ninth place. Numero-uno was Dice followed by Tully Mars, Salt Pork Steve, Oklahoma Jones and German Bob.

NILES CANYON CLEARS OUT RESTURANT!!

Stage three

"This is what I saw," exclaimed 4-Eye Dick, owner and proprietor of Dick's Deli & Boarding House, "The Piate Kid comes in, whooping n hollowing, about how he was going to get the guy who et his pizza. After puttn holes in dang near every piece of furniture in the place, Niles, who was minding his own business trying to finish his steak, took exception to the bullet that pierced his T-bone. Then all hell broke loose, Niles gets up and start shooting back. - and he was mad, I mean real mad. Well the Kid realizing he's in the wrong place made a hasty retreat with all my other patrons."

Well after the smoke cleared, thanks to Niles uncanny marksmanship, no-ones was hurt, and he offered to replace all the damaged fixtures. First was Dice - again-followed by German Bob, Tully Mars, Cyrus Sidewinder and Oklahoma Jones.
